Bunch.

Rutland, July 27.—Burlington more than evened up for its defeat by Rutland Wednesday, when playing errorless ball here yesterday. Rutland played a loose game, only one of the visitors' tallies being earned. Yerkes was not as effective as Tift, who allowed a bare three hits, but the score would have been different save for inexcusable errors. Tift was really bettered more than the score indicates, but brilliant fielding often saved him. It was his seventh straight victory, with not a defeat this season.

The feature of the game was Carroll's catch of McGovern's long foul fly. Burlington got her first tally in the third on Pattee's hit, and Burdette's single. Two more runs were added in the fourth on a double by Beach, a single by Carroll and four errors. The last tally came in the eighth on Higgins' two-bagger and Collins' error.

Rutland did not get a man beyond second. The score and summary:

He was riding across the tracks on a bicycle and did not see the freight train approaching from the south. Shall Proctor Succeed Proctor as Vermont's Political Boss?

There is more in the present campaign than the election of a governor and a set of state officers. The state of Vermont is called upon to say whether it will continue a certain family in power, that, for the past 15 years, has dictated state tickets and politics and taken to itself the best and most remunerative offices.

THE RISE OF PROCTOR

In 1891, Redfield Proctor was appointed U. S. Senator by Gov. Carroll S. Page, who was at that time very close to the future ringmaster of Vermont. How well he repaid that mark of confidence was shown in 1892, when, with Page a candidate for Congress, the Proctors, father and son, ruthlessly betrayed him because he threatened their domination of state politics.

In 1892, Redfield Proctor was confirmed as senator by a vote of the General Assembly. His political machine was then complete and those composing it were heavily rewarded. That Assembly contained the following men: Their political rewards follow them:

Oliver Merrill	Collector of Customs
H. C. Gleason	Collector of Internal Revenue
D. J. Foster	Congressman
Kittredge Haskins	Congressman
Joshua Grant	Governor
George M. Powers	Supreme Court
F. M. Plumley	Arbitrator
W. W. Stickney	Governor
John L. Bacon	Treasurer
E. A. Hewland	Secretary of State

PROCTOR'S POWER

There were dozens of others, all recognized in various ways. The Proctor machine was then practically unassailable. Today, with appointments to federal offices absolutely controlled by Proctor, it has become so insolent that governors are named six years in advance and those who oppose it are summarily punished. With every postmaster a Proctor beneficiary; with every United States officer in Vermont a Proctor advocate and helper; with every office-holder largely dependent on Proctor favor, the power of this machine can be readily understood.

WHAT MAKES IT PROFITABLE

That is not all. There is an arrangement at the House of Correction, where the State of Vermont is doing an unadmitted marble business of half a million, the rough material being furnished by Proctor. The Proctors profit largely by this.

Half the business of the Vermont Marble company at Proctor comes from government contracts. No man pretends that the senatorial influence of Redfield Proctor is not used to swing this business to his marble mills. The Proctors profit largely by this.

AN HEIR TO THE FAMILY PRESTIGE

Today Redfield Proctor is anxious to retire from his public labors as senator. He desires that the family shall be continued in political power at home and entrenched in government perquisites at Washington. How this end is reached is not especially material.

It may be by Fletcher Proctor's resignation from the office of governor—if elected—the senator's resignation from the U. S. Senate taking place about the same time, and the appointment of his son as senator being carried forward by their joint creature, G. H. Prouty, who would then become acting governor.

TOO MUCH PROCTOR

It may be by the backing of Z. M. Mansur of Newport, or some other tool of the Proctors for governor two years hence, the senator's resignation taking place immediately after some session of the legislature, and the appointing of Fletcher D. Proctor. But in some way, the elevation of the son to the U. S. Senate will be accomplished—if Fletcher D. Proctor is elected governor—and the family of Proctor will be continued in political power for another quarter century.

That is the proposition that confronts Vermonters. It is not the election of a rather estimable young man to the governorship; it is the first step in a chain of events that bids fair to place Vermont politics in control of the Proctors perpetually.

TIME TO CHANGE THINGS

Hasn't the state had enough of Proctor?
Isn't it time there was a change in party rule?
Are we not due for a general over-set of conditions that permit one family to dominate a whole state?

The ideal shore costume is both smart and practical, and this year it is fashioned of firm, smooth linen, is tailor made and handsomely embroidered.

Tenney's Men Make Many Errors.

The Boston Americans started their Western trip disastrously yesterday afternoon by losing to Detroit by the score of 7 to 4, due as much to miserable playing as anything. They hit the ball harder than did Detroit, but a total of seven errors is enough to lose any game. Detroit also played a poor game in the field and the only reason that the Tigers won was that the visitors played poorer.

Tenney's men made seven errors with Chicago in Boston yesterday and lost, naturally, by the score of 6 to 2. New York also won over Cincinnati by the score of 2 to 1 and Pittsburgh over Philadelphia by 7 to 2. Among the tail-enders St. Louis put it over Brooklyn, 7 to 4.

A BURLINGTON INVENTION.

Switch Operating Mechanism Patented by Junius Barnes.

Burlington, July 27.—Junius Barnes of this city has just had patented at Washington, D. C., a switch-operating mechanism for cars. It is a very simple contrivance and was only 60 days in passing through the 30 different departments of the patent office, which goes to show that Mr. Barnes' idea is original and that there are no other patents of a similar nature.

The mechanism consists of a steel standard, which passes through the car platform. At the top end of the standard is a handle for the motorman and at the other end is a small pointed steel shoe, which turns the switches. All street railroad switches are split switches and the steel shoe catches between the split and solid rail, which throws the split and movable rail out of position. When a motorman is moving a switch he can throw the steel shoe into position with a movement of the foot and the mechanism remains in position until another movement of the foot releases it. Mr. Barnes has also had a joint switch patented, which is made in such a manner that when the last wheel passes over it is closed mechanically.

Mr. Barnes has at his rooms on Cherry street a small model of his invention which has been examined by the officers of the Burlington Traction company and other people interested in street railways. At present he is making a larger model, which will probably be placed on some car. The simplicity of the contrivance has made a very favorable impression on all railroad men who have seen the model.

BYERLY'S PROFIT.

Express Clerk Makes Nice Deal in Panama Bonds.

New York, July 27.—Samuel Byerly, the American express company clerk to whom was awarded $2,800,000 in Panama bonds on a postage stamp bid, is said to have disposed of the property at a handsome profit. It is said that no difficulty was experienced by Byerly in selling the option to a house that is interested in Panama properties. Byerly's profit on the transaction is estimated by some to be as high as $25,000.

Wall street is interested in Byerly because of the acumen he displayed in putting through his venture. Owing to the condition of the money market no deposit was required of the bidders and Byerly took quick advantage of this.

JAIL FOR THIS NEW YORK AUTOIST

Sentenced to Two Months Imprisonment for Injuring Women at Yonkers.

Yonkers, July 26.—City Judge Joseph H. Beall, who recently gave warning that he would send automobile owners and chauffeurs guilty of immoderate or reckless driving to jail, fulfilled his pledge yesterday when he sentenced George W. Bryant of 116 East Eighty-fourth street, Manhattan, to two months in the King's County Penitentiary and to pay a fine of $50.

A few days ago Bryant's chauffeur, Frank Bruch of 1553 Second avenue was also sentenced to a term of two months in jail by the judge.

On the night of July 1 an automobile in which Bruch and Bryant were seated ran into a carriage, owned by Mrs. M. Odell, a wealthy Yonkers woman. Mrs. Odell's daughter, Mrs. Amber Hewison, was severely injured. It was alleged that Bryant's machine was racing with another automobile at the time.

Bryant and Bruch have both appealed. Bryant owns a garage at 120 East Eighty-fourth street, and is reputed to be wealthy. At the trial it was shown that Bruch operated the machine, but Judge Beall held that the owner was equally culpable.
